OSB Honey label re-design

I wanted to create a simple logo that would compliment with the septate label on the front of the jars.

I kept the label simple as to not draw away from the seal sticker and the honey itself, yet still informative and easy to read.

Jelly Labels

Homemade jelly made me think of time spent with my family outside with gingham tablecloths. I brought that memory into my design.

Vinegar Labels

The vinegar labels follow with the green and white check pattern, but it is only around the edges as to make sure they are cohesive the more sophisticated use of the product.

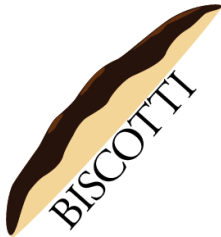

Mount sweet stuff, assorted candies and biscotti follow suite with the vinegar and the jelly continuing with the checked border. Because the center of both designs are white, I wanted to add more contrast between the center and the border. I took the original colors used for the first set of checks and adjusted the color to a darker shade that added the contrast I was looking for.
